TNMC & WANS International Nursing Research Conference 2017
“Culture, Co-creation, and Collaboration for Global Health”

20 - 22 October 2017

Miracle Grand Convention Hotel
Bangkok, Thailand

Introduction

Nursing has long provided services to the global community which, in turn, contributes to global health. The global health is about worldwide health improvement, reduction of disparities, and protection against global threats that disregard national borders. In order for global health to be achieved, international efforts must be made. With this aim, extensive efforts have been made internationally from all disciplines including nursing.

Based on findings from rigorous nursing research studies in general, and cross-cultural research studies in particular, professional, cultural sensitive nursing knowledge are developed and served as the basis to guarantee evidence-based practice. In addition, learning from the previous research studies in the MDGs era helps identify research gap that is challenging for the SDGs era. Thailand Nursing and Midwifery Council (TNMC) and the World Academy of Nursing Science (WANS) have agreed to take an initiative to hold this international conference in order to offer opportunities for nursing research networking designed to improve global health outcomes.

Objectives

1. To update advances in nursing research, practice, management and education in relation to global health issues.
2. To contribute to foster and continue international collaboration, networking, and partnerships in nursing research in global health.
3. To bring together leading academic scientists, researchers and research scholars from diverse academic and clinical settings to exchange and share their experiences and research results on all aspects of Global Health and Nursing Innovation.
4. To provide a forum for lecturers, nurses, and students to discuss the issues and trends of nursing related to global health
